As your decay Made room for May, So I must part with all that's mine; My balmy breeze, My blooming trees, To torrid anns their sweets resign.

For April dead My shades I spread, To her I owe my dress so gay Of daughters three It falls on me To close our triumphs on one day.

Thus to repose Time on the wing May ends the Spring. And Summer frolies o'er her tomb.

The foregoing brief sketch is condensed from an interesting paper read by EVERT A. DUYCHINCK, at the May meeting of the New York Historical Society, and reported in the =LITTLE BELL. He prayeth well, who loveth well Both man, and bird, and beast.

The Ancient Mariner Little Bell sat down beneath the rocks-Tossed aside her gleaming, golden locks"Bonny bird," quota she,
"'ing me your best song before I go."
"Here's the very finest song I know,
Little Bell," said he.

And the black bird piped—you never heard finit so gay a song from any bird— Full of quibbs and wiles. New so round and rich, now so soft and slow: Dimpled o'ee with smiles.

And the while that bonny bird did pour

His full heart out freely o'er and o'er,

'Neath the morning skies, In the little childish heart below, All the the sweetness seemed to grow and grow, And shine forth in happy overflow From the blue, bright eyes.

Down the dell she tripped, and through the glade Peeped the squirrel from the hazel shade, And from out the tree Swung and leaped, and frolieked void of fear, While bold black bird piped, that all might hear-"Little Bell," piped he. Little Bell sat down smid the fern-"Squirrel, squirrel' to your task return—
"Bring me nuts," quoth she;
Up, away, the frisk squirrel hies—
Golden wood-lights glancing in his eyes—
And down the tree,
Great ripe auts, kissed brown by July's sun
In the little len, dron con his con-

In the little lap, drop one by one— Hark! how black bird pipes to see the fun! "Little Bell," quoth he. Little Beil looked up and down the glade, "Squirrel, squirrel, from the nut tree shade, Bonny black bird, if you're not afraid Come and share with me!"

Bown came squirrel, eager for his fare, Bown came bonny black bird, I declare; Little Bell gave each his honest share—

And the while the frolic playmates twain Piped and frisked from bough to bough again, 'Neath the morning skies, All the sweetness seemed to grow and grow,".

And shining out in happy overflow

From her blue, bright eyes,

By her snow-white coat at close of day neit sweet Bell with folded palms to pray— Very calm and clear Rose the praying voice to where, unseen In blue Heaven, an angel shape screne Paused awhite to hear.

"That with happy heart beside her bed Prays so lovingly?" Low and soft, oh! very low and soft, Crooned the black bird in orchard croft,

"Whom God's creatures love," the angel fair Murmured, "God doth bless the with angel's care— Child, thy bed shall be Fuided safe from harm—love deep and kind Shall watch around and leave good gifts behind,

A HOME PICTURE. BY WILLIAM B. ROLCOMBE.

They have wheeled the Old Man's easy chair nder the blossoming cherry-tree, or he still delights to hear and see What Spring is about in the open air:
For his heart is young, though his head is old.
And the light about him is purple and gold.
A bright-eyed boy, with golden hair,
A laughing child is at his knee:
And the Old Man's trembling hands are laid Like a crown upon his curiy head.

A picture beautiful to see ! w Age and Infancy agree In loving, pratting sympathy! While down the snow-white blossoms full Brightly, softly as they can, Like blessings dropped by the Father of All On the Winter and Spring of Man.

WIG MANUFACTORY. NO. 85 FOURTH-ST., BETWEEN MAIN & MARKET. THE OLDEST STAND IN LOUISVILLE, KY. (RS, G. AICHOLAS invites the attention of her A customers to the newly invented "Vestilation Diamond Wigs." These Wigs were invented by Mr. Richard Beck, of London, and made by one of the genmium for the best Wigs on exhibition at the industrial Exhibition, London, 1851. They are warranted not to shrink; (those who have worn Wige know that the greatest comfort in a Wig is in one that will not shrink at all;) besides, they are so close a resemblance to na-ture as to defy detection. And to enable gentlemen to see the effect, a large assortment is always kept on hand for inspection, any one of which, if approved of, saves the purchaser both time and trouble, as these elegant specimens of Wigs cannot be found elsewhere.
